William J. Wilson, 73 years old,

NEED A NEW BOX OF TRICKS.

Deception, misrepresentation and tearful pleas for "complementary votes" continue to be the policies pursued by the Democratic party, candidates and workers in a frenzied effort to overcome the lack of voters in their own ranks. Aware that their own ticket was hand-picked at the dictation of the bosses, who were unwilling to give the members of the party any freedom of choice, and that the candidates so selected have no merits or qualifications surpassing their Republican opponents, it is realized that there is no possible chance of electing the ticket to its entirety.

There is the hope, however, that by the practice of deception, abuse of the characters of Republican nominees and other artifices with which the Democratic workers are familiar, that a sufficient number of Republicans will be lured into supporting one or more Democratic nominees to the extent necessary to defeat their opponents.

Utterly false and misleading claims are being made by the organs of the discredited Democrats which deliberately state as facts that there is widespread dissatisfaction with the Republican ticket; that women voters are deserting the party almost en-masse and that very few male voters will give their undivided support to the ticket.

Disparaging efforts are being made to deny responsibility for having induced Chief of Police Murphy who was defeated for nomination to enter as an independent candidate for sheriff, notwithstanding the fact that many Democrats, including a candidate on the municipal ticket in Connelville, were signers of Murphy's petition and have been helpful in boosting his campaign.

The Democrats may derive the usual satisfaction from the employment of their well-known campaign methods,
but thoughtful and well-informed Republicans are not paying any attention to the propaganda put in circulation for the selfish purpose of deceiving voters in the hope that at least one or two Democrats may slip into office.

If they wish to succeed the Democrats ought to get a new box of tricks.

SOMETHING FOR LOVERS OF WILD LIFE TO THINK ABOUT.

With the hunting season in full swing and an army of hunters in the fields and woods it would appear that such wild game as remains is in danger of early extinction, when one considers how liberal are the provintions of the game laws with respect to the daily bag limit.

Take, for instance, the Bob-White quail. In 28 states of the union the average daily bag limit is 41 birds. This makes the possible killing per gun, each year, 523 birds. Multiply that by the thousands of hunters who will be afoot before the close of the season and some idea can be formed as to extent of the slaughter that will take place. Similar and equally impressive statements might be made with respect to wild ducks, the average daily bag limit of which is 25 per day for three and one-half months; or of mourning doves, 25 per day for an average season of 65 days;
or grouse, five per day; or gray
squirrels, eight to 15 per day.

Pursuing the list to the end the average person must be brought in accord with William T. Hornaday, the great naturalist and president of the Permanent Wild Life Protection League who is actively engaged in arousing public sentiment in favor of a reduction in the daily bag limit as the most certain means of preventing the utter annihilation of game. In an appeal to the editors of newspapers
Dr. Hornaday makes this strong presentation in behalf of better game
preservation:

"Turn me to say to you, speaking briefly and without noting exceptions,
that the American people of the 48 states are guilty of great folly in permitting their game birds and mammals to be slaughtered as game-slaughter now is going on. If you can not believe this, 20 years hence your sons will believe it, and regret it. The turning point has arrived.

"The cause of the present wicked and foolish destruction are by no means obscure. The slaughter of game is ordered and regulated by a very small minority, always consisting of hunters. The many millions of good men and women who do not shoot, and do not kill 'game,' are as a mass ignorant, or heedless, or deadly apathetic. Of the 5,000,000 men who annually kill game, about 90 per cent are heedless of the rights of wild optimism (of a deadly kind), or else

they do not feel impelled to become active reformers.
"The non-migratory game species—
bob-white quail, grouse, prairie chicken, wild turkey, squirrels and deer, all are going to hell through wicked engines of destruction, deadly bag limits and outrageous open sessions, aided by much illegal shooting.
Now the deadly automobile has added 50 per cent to the perils of the game."

This is something for every lover
of wild life, and those who follow
sport for sport's sake, to think about.

The Narcotic Evil

Higgins.

Consider the greed of the producers of opium! It is estimated that one hundred tons of opium is ample to supply the medical needs of the world each year. The actual production is two thousand tons. The unfortunate opium addicts, therefore, use nine times as much as is used by sick persons who need narcotics for relief from unendurable pain.

Dr. W. W. Peter, now serving with the Council on Health Education in Shanghai, China, recently returned from a tour through Siam. He says that 33 per cent of the total revenue
of the government of Siam, $32,000, 900, comes from the manufacture and sale of opium, a sum of more than $10,000,000. This is greater than the revenue from any other single source including land and capital tax, railways and customs duties. "Opium in Siam is a strictly guarded government monopoly."

One of the sights of Bangkok, the capital, is a carefully policed, well organized factory where balls of raw opium purchased in India are manufactured into the finished product,
neatly done up for sale in metal tubes,
like toothpaste. The Siamese government intends to decrease and finally abolish this evil, but finds this difficult in the absence of an international agreement.

With the producers of opium seeking to promote the sale of their product in every possible way, and with national governments protecting the business for the sake of the revenue
it yields, the suppression of this nefarious traffic is a difficult task. The production of opium and of other narcotics throughout the world should be limited, by international agreement, to the amount actually needed for legitimate medical use. The governments should then see that it is delivered only to those who will use it legitimately.

A BABY'S LANGUAGE.

Well, I declare! You little laughing
lassie,
Cheer as pink as roses and as full
of sweetness, too,
Ever as bright as stars shine on a May
pond, that's gleamy,
Everything you look at is a wonder thing to you.

Hold your arms out to me and let me laugh and laugh at you,
And then one thing's very certain, your old Dad will come and take you.

Well, I declare! You're so small, yet domineering,
You can't walk or talk or tell the time, and yet you make it plain by your smiling and your squalling that you'll stand no interfering With the wishes you're expressing
and the joys you reach to gain.
Now may I stir their words together
and tell you it may be,
But the sweetest language spoken is the language of a baby.

Well, I declare! By your cooing and your laughter
And your five small feet which glide when you break into a amble,
You are very, very tiny, but you set
what you are after.

For you know your dad will weaken
if you worry him awhile,
So go ahead and squall, have no fear
that he'll forsake you—
When you hold your arms out that way
he will always come and take you.

Education—The Strength of America

(The following article by James J.
Davis, Secretary of Labor, is the second of the United Press Education Week series.)

By JAMES J. DAVIS
Secretary of Labor.
(Copyright, 1923, by United Press)
WASHINGTON, Nov. 2.—Education is the backbone of American supren-acy; it is the lifeblood which keeps the energies of a hundred and ten million people directed toward a better and fuller enjoyment of the inalienable rights of mankind. Without it no form of representative government could long maintain its existence.

It is important that we as a people do not in moments of indifference forget the importance of this national institution. It should be fostered not alone for the training of our children, but for the training of the foreign-born who have come to this country in the expectation of enjoying the fruits of our advanced civilization and the opportunities which is offered. The education of these people is a matter of national importance which the government should itself supervise.

I sincerely hope that in the enactment of a new alien code the next Congress will make provision for the enrollment and education of every unnaturalized resident.

But that will not lessen the duty which devolves upon every citizen to assist in making Americanism mean no less than was the anticipation of the founders of the republic. In training for citizenship there is educational work to be done by all.

Avoid the Discomforts of Winter

The man who spends most of his time
inside does not require as heavy underwear
as the man of the outdoors. The selection of underwear best suited to your particular needs goes a long way toward real comfort and protection from colds. To get a garment that will protect you and at the same time "feel right" is the garment a host of people are looking for. Union Supply Company's lines for men, women, and children are second to none in this respect.
Only the best makes are carried. In our stocks you will find a good selection of materials—cotton, wool, mixtures, and mercerized—in light, medium, or heavy weight. These suits are made to fit snugly. They will retain their shape after repeated washings; they will not bind; the buttons stay on—just about perfection in underwear, we believe. Two piece suits for those who prefer them. Get yours to-winter.

Klansmen Deny Kidnaping and Whipping Man

By United Press.

DALLAS, Tex., Nov. 2.—Denial was issued by high officials of the Ku Klux Klan today that any members of that organization participated in the kidnaping of Joe Westbrook and Loren Johnson from their rooming house here last night.

Westbrook was stripped, handcuffed to a tree and beaten with a heavy leather strap while Johnson looked on. Johnson, who returned early today from the rooming house from which the two men were abducted, said he had not been flogged but had merely been warned not to associate with Westbrook. Westbrook's back was a mass of welts and was suffering severely. He said his kidnappers accused him of failure to support his wife and child, with whom he is not living and with meeting another woman. He denied both accusations.

He told police that two of the whippers were waiting at the home of Mrs. Pauline Fox, where he rooms with Johnson, when he returned home. Without a word, he said, they were seized, blindfolded, placed in an automobile. Westbrook did not know what happened to Johnson. He declared he could identify at least two men and declared there was a second automobile, carrying six men.

RADIO FLASH TRIPS TO POLAND AND BACK 20 TIMES IN 25 SECONDS

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—A revolutionary step in the scientific and commercial development of radio telegraphy, a radio signal Thursday made 20 round trips from the New York office of the Radio Corporation of America to Warsaw, Poland—traveling at a speed of 4,000,000 miles in 25 seconds—without the assistance of an operator at either end. The feat definitely demonstrated that simultaneous acknowledgment can be given long distance radio telegraph messages, declared Gen. J. G. Harbord, president of the corporation.

A single loop connected the vast space while an operator "dot" raced through the ether with the speed of light and faithfully returned on a tape each return trip from Warsaw, negotiating on each round trip 8,000 miles.

The accomplishment means that commercial and other radio messages will be checked as to proof of their receipt and accuracy almost instantaneously with their sending, said Gen. Harbord.

The demonstration followed a series of tests of control relays of the United States-Poland circuit, one of the longest radio routes in existence. First, the operator at the control center in the New York office communicated with the Warsaw operator and instructed him to "loop" his receiving station with the transmitting station covering a distance of 150 miles between each other. A dot message was sent out and made the complete loop from the New York office and back again while the Warsaw operator manipulated his key. Instructions were then given the operator at Warsaw to leave his key unattended and the "dot" message rocketed around the vast loop 20 times before it died out owing to electrical obstacles.

Time to Face the Facts

"So much has been said against the use of patent medicines that I have had a strong prejudice against them. But after four years' doctoring with six different doctors, without results, for acute indigestion, gastritis, constipation, appendicitis and other ailments, I was said to possess, I was encouraged to try May's Wonderful Remedy, seeing what it had done for a friend similarly afflicted. I also was entirely relieved of my trouble, and am sure this medicine will do all and more than is claimed for it." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. VOODOO MAGIC AMONG NEGROES

Black Magic of African Jungles
Still Practiced.

BLACKS PREDICT OWN DEATHS

Voodooism is dead. The black magic of African jungles long since was laid away by science and education and religion. It could not drive in these days of the airplane and the radio. Its last stand was in the canebrakes and the cotton patches of Louisiana and Mississippi, but the first flickering electric lights in New Orleans decades ago drove it away forever.

But, nevertheless, they'll tell you at the place where science holds the most undisputed sway, the hospital, there are cures.

In the negro ward are brought the ground-up needles, the pebbles picked up in the light of the new moon at the crossroads, and the tongues of big frogs bleached in red marked canvas bags which are worn about the necks of the patients. The doctors laugh and the nurses scoff as they throw them away.

Died on Schedule
Bed No. 12 in the colored men's ward of the Charity hospital died on schedule this morning.

Late in the afternoon Bed 12 was examined by the doctors. He appeared to be getting better. Certainly, he showed no dangerous symptoms.

But when the nurse passed a glass of water over him to Bed 15, the man in that bed refused it.

"It's got them things in it, nurse," declared Bed 15.

The nurse held it up to the light. Bed 12 and Bed 15 looked at each other and smiled.

"There's nothing in this water, boy."

"Yes, ma'am, you can't see nothing," said Bed 15. "But there's always things in water passed over a man that's going to be having soon."

Set Time of Death.
"Boy's right," Bed 12 murmured.

"Everything's going to be over tonight."

The day nurse told the night nurse about this chatter at seven o'clock before she hurried off to change clothes for a new day.

In the early part of the night Bed 12 slept, but he awoke a little before one o'clock.

"Everything's going to be over in five minutes," said Bed 12.

The nurse went back to her table in the hall where the record of the injuries of her patients is kept in words such as a woodpecker got into the tree.

She sat a few minutes wondering if she should call the ward doctor out of bed. She had decided to call him, but she went back to the ward before going to the telephone. Bed 12 was dead.

Nurses Take Away Charms
Psychology, explains the doctors, and the nurse says, "I can't see 'em course." But the patient says with the "rabbits" feet and the pebbles do it cure to nurse the question.

Not long ago there was a negro woman with polio, who called the nurse to her bed and said she saw the angels coming for her. "That woman was getting better. There was every reason to believe she was going to get well."

"They'll be here about three o'clock," said the nurse.

And at 3:07 she died.

Most likely the bugs with their charms are the work of the devil, as one of the nurses who are nurses put it. And so they take them away from the patients and burn them. There are pleadings sometimes, but usually just mumbled.

Silver Coin in Onion.
It's not always at the hospital either. The other day a colored woman, who was remarkable for her white skin, was murdered by her Chinese lover, and since all her possessions have been collected and searched in getting the case, which amounted to more than $1000 for costs was turned over to the public administrator, Thomas Nichols. Among the effects were found certain packages that indicated pretty strongly that the woman had practiced voodoo rituals—coconut oil of its natural contents and filled with an evil-smelling liquid—a silver dollar found within the cut halves of an onion, and all wrapped in pink silk rags that had once been part of luxurious and costly garments.

Material medicine takes no stock in "root" tongues, but here is the case of an old negro man brought to the Charity hospital by his employer:

"This fellow says he is going to die next Tuesday," said the employer.

"See what you can do for him."

The old negro was, so far as the doctors could find out, not a bit sick.

But he died when Tuesday came.

Region Losing Business By Furnaces Blowing Out; One Turns to By-Product

But Prices of Week Ago Are Well Maintained for All Grades.

LITTLE DEMAND FOR SPOT

Daily Sub-standard Cokes Being Offered at Bargain Prices, Makers of Best Brands Holding Firm; Hint
of Coal Strike Next Spring Heard.

Special to The Weekly Courier.

PITTSBURGH, October 31.—The chief news in the Connellsville coke trade this week is that it is losing some business in that several furnaces now using merchant coke from the region are to blow out and that one furnace ordinarily using Connellsville coke is to blow in and use by-product coke from Youngstown.

By the very material decrease there has been in merchant coke operations in the past few weeks the balance between production and consumption had been practically restored and the spot market put on an even keel, evidenced by offerings of coke on track being greatly diminished.

There is no change in quotable prices on spot or prompt coke, which are as well maintained as a week ago. In furnace coke there is some to be had at $3.75, this being chiefly and probably wholly coke on track and requiring shipping instructions to avoid demurrage charges. There is very little demand indeed for spot coke and thus it seems plain that the offerings must also be light or the market would be further depressed. It is true there have been rumors in circulation of $3.50 being done on coke, but these reports quite lack of verification on the basis of the coke being of really standard quality.

All or nearly all the best brands of furnace coke are held at a price of $4.00 for production coke in small lots, making $4.00 part of the market range. The price would not be right if maintained on an inquiry for a round tonnage for extended delivery.

Foundry coke remains in rather light demand, but prices have not suffered. Indifferent cokes, not really standard, are being sold or at least offered at prices below $5.00, but they are not part of the market and there is not a great deal of coke going even at $5.00. At $5.25 fairly good foundry coke can be had, while best brands are generally held at $5.50, and there have been several transactions in the past week at this figure. The market thus remains quite unchanged as follows:

Spot furnace $3.75 to $4.00
Spot foundry $5.25 to $5.50

Struthers Furnace Company, with a large merchant stock at Smith's O., came into the market last week for 15,000 to 16,000 tons of coke a month, from November 1 either to January 1 or to April 1, prices on both deliveries being asked. The trade understands that although some Connellsville operators offered substantial concessions from the prices they had previously considered their minimum the contract went to the steel interest at Youngstown which in 1931 sold a good bit of by-product coke to cut-side consumers. The contract was made to run to April 1, and thus involves a total of 75,000 to 80,000 tons of coke. There are some specific, but perhaps not accurate, reports as to the price done and the latest statement.

ment is that the price was considerably below $4.00. It has been known lately that one or two Connellsville operators would be willing to do $3.85 on a good sized contract to the end of the year, but it is not known that the same price would be made for deliveries extending through the first quarter of the new year.

When prices in the neighborhood of $3.85 are mentioned it must be understood that bidding has been narrowed down to a very few coke producers. The majority have withdrawn from the reckoning, not being willing to consider such prices and preferring to have their plants idle.

A producer forced to operate to the end of the year by contract already in hand may make a particularly low price on additional tonnage to secure a high operating rate and cut down cost. The same operator might not make as low a price for the first three months of the new year, on account of not having other business to take care of, and also on account of the possibility of there being another coal strike April 1, the prospect of which would no doubt stiffen the coal and coke markets. There are decided possibilities that there will be a strike and even a long one, though no one at present is disposed to guess which way the balance of probability lies.

While on all hands the coal market is described as being in very poor shape it is possible that a close analysis would show it to be a trifle better than a week or a fortnight ago. It is certainly not in materially worse condition. Production has decreased, but this is chiefly by way of some mines closing and that does not make the market worse for the remaining producers. While Pittsburgh district steam coal has lately been quoted in the spot market at 75 cents to $1.00 for slack and $1.75 to $2.00 for minimum, sales at the lower prices are really somewhat exceptional and a further statement would be $3 cents to $1.00 for slack and $1.50 to $2.00 for minimum.

By-product coal in the Connellsville region shows a wider range of quotations than formerly, chiefly because with the limited demand and from offerings buyers can be more particular as to quality. There is now quite a price differential between best grades and medium grades. The best grades usually command about $2.25 while medium grades are sometimes offered in small spot lots at a shade under $2.00.

The pig iron market is very quiet, but not so completely stagnant as it was, particularly in foundry grades. Prices are not very well established. Bessmer holds at its old price of $25, Valley, but this is only on small lots. Basic is quoted by merchant furnaces at $24, Valley, but it is claimed it can be bought at $23 or less and the market may be considerably nominal in the absence of any really crucial test. Foundry iron has softened further. A week ago it had declined $1 to $23, Valley, but since then the Standard Sanitary Manufacturing Company has bought without difficulty at $22.50, and evidently did not consider the price a bargain as it bought for November delivery only and sparingly at that. The market is thus quotable as follows:

Bessmer $25.00
Basic, nominal $24.00
Foundry $22.50 to $23.00
Valley $24.00 to $25.00

These prices are f. o. b. Valley furnaces, freight to Pittsburgh being $4.75.

Firm, Plump Flesh!

MANY are the eyes that are turned to gaze with admiration on the well developed, healthy girl no matter where she may be—on the rapidly moving thoroughfare or gliding gracefully by the dance floor.

All eyes turn because we all appreciate the girl with the figure so firm and plump—the girl with radiantly red cheeks, cheeks that carry a touch of roses from nature's own garden—the girl with the sparkling eyes, keen and sharp—the girl with buoyancy and the swing of youth.

Not necessarily an out-of-doors girl. Just a girl with ever increasing blood cells. Just a girl filled with the vim and vigor of youth.

S. S. S. since 1826, has stood for increased blood cells. S. S. S. means restored strength—rekindled vitality—added energy. Take S. S. S. and watch the bloom of youth return to your cheeks. Watch that ruddy, flushed flesh fade away before flesh that is firm and plump. Red blood cells will do it and S. S. S. will build them. It contains only pure vegetable ingredients. S. S. S. is sold at all good drug stores. The large size bottle is more economical.

Every Week New York Sends Us New Coat Styles For You To See!

THIS is a fact tremendously important to every woman who intends to buy a coat this season! It means that our already complete stocks are being replenished every week to insure that you may always have correct styles to choose from. It means that what Fifth Ave. wears today, Connellsville may have tomorrow. It means that you will not readily find coats whose beauty, workmanship and character are superior to ours. There were many new arrivals this past week. It will be very interesting to come in and see them for yourself tomorrow.

Sport Coats

In a season that stresses the popularity of plaid of fests in sport coats—some bold, many softly shadowed—the garments you can choose from here are as unique as they are clever. We have been careful to avoid styles that are bizarre. These are garments that appeal to folk who like their things to be practical as well as pretty. Plain or fur trimmed models at $19.75 to $99.50.

Coats In Rich Materials

Many new coats depend entirely upon their fabric for their charm. They do not use fur as trimming and for that reason alone appeal to many women who like their clothes to be different from those of anybody else. Deep warm colors and careful attention to tailoring details serve to increase their loveliness the more. They are priced to suit the needs of every purse—$35 to $99.50.

New Models In Geron

Notable among new coats that the week has brought is a collection of new models in Geron. This rich fabric is beautifully blended with trimmings of Platinum Wolf, Kit Fox, Black Fox and Taupe Fox.

The styles follow the long slender silhouette that is being worn so becomingly with the small cloche hat. It would be hard to imagine another effect half so distinctive and becoming. These very new coats are priced $89.50 to $199.50—and all are beautifully lined. Another very attractive coat in Granada—a beautifully broadened material—trimmed with Kerem Fox can now be had for $75.

Apparel Sections—Second Floor.

Serge, Twill for Chic New Outfit

Navy Blue, or Neutral Beige and Gray Popular for Fall Wear.

Come what will in the world of fashion, there is no such thing as oblivion for the tailored frock of serge or twill, in navy blue or neutral beige and gray, declares a fashion correspondent in the Kansas City Star. It holds its own season after season, and the remarkable thing is that designers contrive to give it a distinctly new aspect each time it appears.

This year a certain variation in details is noted, with much attention paid to those suggested by the modes of China. This, perhaps, is more in the introduction of color and in touches of embroidery or the application of narrow bands of bright trimming around the neck and down the side, just as one sees in the Chinese coats.

It is probably by the clever use of color that navy blue frocks of this season are distinguished from those of last.

In line they are straight and slim, with wrist-length sleeves which are sometimes tight, but quite as often bell-shaped, with dainty undersleeves of net or muslin.

For practical purposes nothing takes the place of a dark blue gown, and with the addition of a well chosen hat, shoes and stockings of correct lines and colors, and a scarf of really good fur, it constitutes a street costume that leaves nothing to be desired in the way of chic and good taste.

Afternoon and dinner gowns of lace and velvet are shown with cape or full-length jersey sleeves. A striking gown of black velvet has cherry red and gold sleeves.

There is such a youthful charm about the cape frocks and suits that it is not surprising to find them conspicuously featured in every collection of autumn and winter models, particularly among those designed for the school and college girl. One slip known from coast to coast for its youthful clothes which meet every demand of smartness and practicality makes a special point of the capote suit.

It is developed in soft woolsens and consists of a frock with a silk top, a wrap-around skirt of wool and a hip-length coat which has a cape extending just over the shoulders. The collar is often fur and sometimes there are fur cuffs, but the model which has been received most enthusiastically has simply the touch of fur at the neck.

Rows of pin tucks vary the straight-line silhouette of the coat dress in navy polart twill. Bindings are beige crepe.

There are also charming little frocks of wool, velvet or velveteen. These have a short, straight or circular cape which snaps onto the shoulders and may be removed when necessary.

In one instance it is fashioned of very dark green wool. The cape is of circular cut and has a collar of gray velvet. On the back there is a little straight Chinese collar of silver embroidery and this touch of silver is repeated in the lining cuffs.

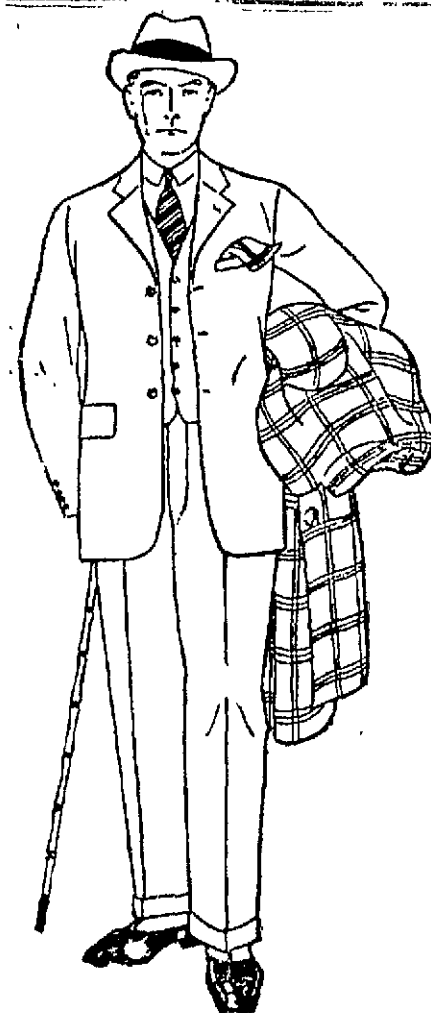

Warmth and Wool.
Pulled-wool comforters have taken the place, to a great extent, of those made of down. These quilts are very warm and are also very light in weight. They may be bought for varying prices according to the proportion of wool used and also the character of the cover. But it is not necessary to buy these comforters ready-made. The wool may be bought in hats as is cotton. The work of making them up is not at all difficult and takes very little time. Testing them is quite as practical as quilting and much simpler. One may, then, secure a very inexpensive and durable bed-cover.

Hat of Gray Felt.
A small close-fitting hat of gray felt has two small flowers made of feathers pinned upon the right side. These ornamental ornaments are of gray and coral color.

Cokers Ready for Game With Indiana High Here Tomorrow; Expect to Win

Team Seems to Be in Fine
Physical Shape; Line-Up Is Not Announced.

SOME CHANGES EXPECTED

The Connelville High School meets Indiana High tomorrow. The game will be played at Fayette field at 3 o'clock.

The Cokers will finish up their practice in preparation for the game by holding signal workouts this afternoon and getting early to bed tonight.

Connellville's play last Saturday afternoon very plainly showed the effects of not having sufficient rest. There was just one big reason why Connellville did not score heavily against McKeesport and that was "too much Halloween."

The Halloween celebration was held here on Friday evening and many of the boys were active all evening and did not get the usual Friday evening rest. This was plainly in evidence in Saturday's game. Coach Lerow and Sattle expect more from their boys tomorrow afternoon as there is no reason why they should be tired.

The team is in good shape physically and is confident of its ability to cope successfully with Indiana.

Connellville people do not seem to realize what a really good football team Connellville High has this season. Although the coaches took up their work with little more than nothing to begin on they are now getting about as much football out of the team as there is in it.

There is no telling how Saturday's line-up will look. As usual, the past week has seen some players gain over others for first-string jobs and there may be some new faces when the play gets under way. Competition is still so keen and the candidates are so evenly divided that none can afford a let-up, for sure as he does someone will slide into his place. Coach Lerow will announce his line-up at the field Saturday afternoon.

Alonzo Stagg, 52-year-old director of athletics at the University of Chicago, in a letter addressed to "all friends of college football," urged them to refrain in any manner from encouraging the professional sport.

He branded the pro games as a "menace" working for the destruction of the college game and said those who attended Sunday clashes between professional teams are responsible for the condition. "To patronize Sunday professional football games," said Stagg, "is to cooperate with forces which are destructive of the finest elements of interscholastic and intercollegiate football and to add to the heavy burden of the schools and colleges in preserving it in its ennobling worth."

In the Realm of Sports.

The "Big" game of the season comes next Saturday, November 10, when High School will play McKeesport here. McKeesport seems to have finally gotten started and is making better headway than earlier in the season. Special preparations will be made for the game and the biggest student body of the season will be out.

South Side Savage Eleven Wants Games

The South Side Savages would like to arrange games with any first class teams averaging 125 pounds. Without a coach the team has only lost two games in three years. It now has a coach and is playing faultless ball fifteen to 20 candidates report for practice every night on the South Side field. A game was secured for Monday night with the High School subs, but was called off. Members of the team are J. Donnelly, S. Hunter, A. Struble, J. May, C. Scheil, McIlhenny and E. Chorpennings.

Games with Scottdale Y. M. C. A. Jr. Mount Pleasant, Uniontown, South Connellville High School and any other teams in the South Side class are wanted. For games write Edward Chorpennings, 1125 Race street, Connellville, or call Bell Phone 715, after 7 o'clock.

New Facilities for River Shipment of Steel to the South

In development of its plans for shipping steel products by river for distribution from Mississippi river ports the Jones & Laughlin Steel Corporation has purchased a site of approximately eight acres in Memphis on the Wolf River Industrial Canal a short distance from the main channel of the Mississippi river, upon which it will erect buildings to house a storage and distributing depot for steel products, with river and rail terminal. The decision to make Memphis the rail distributing point for reaching customers in the South and Southwest was reached after two years of experiment in conveying steel products in steel barges on the Ohio and Mississippi rivers from the Jones & Laughlin mills in the Pittsburgh district to various cities along the lower rivers. Distribution will continue to be made out of St. Louis, Evansville and Louisville as well, but Memphis will be the principal concentration center for the large volume of the corporation's trade into the Southwest.

The Jones & Laughlin Steel Corporation was the first of the big steel manufacturers in the Pittsburgh district to adopt river and rail deliveries for its various products and in the interval since its first experiments were made, it has sent 15 large movements south on the Ohio and Mississippi in its own steel barges in tow of one of its own fleet of steamers. Each shipment has transported from 5,000 to 7,000 tons of steel pipe, structural shapes, bars, rods, plates, wire products and tinplate, a large portion of which was distributed inland from river cities by rail. The corporation has recently completed a small fleet of new gondolas and box hoppers designed especially for this service and has a new towboat under construction this equipment being in addition to its present fleet of eight steamboats and 200 barges.

Feeling the Dogs.
A dog recently entered a church in Aberdeen, Scotland, and after causing much commotion was summarily ejected by the minister. The canine intruder would have passed almost unobserved in many a Highland kirk half a century ago, when it was the general custom for the shepherds to take their faithful collies with them to church.

In some districts, where the population was scanty, the congregation on Sunday mornings would frequently be made up half of humans and half of dogs. The canine auditors sat out the service with commendable patience until the announcement of the last psalm, when there was a general stretching and yawning preparatory to scattering out as soon as the benediction had been pronounced.

In one kirk the congregation determined that the service should close in more decorous fashion. When a strange minister officiated one Sunday he found all the folk sitting when he was about to pronounce the benediction and paused for them to rise. "Say amen," said one old shepherd near the pulpit, "we're a sitting to cheat the dogs."

Richer.
Rob—Can you see any change in me?
Johnny—No; why?
Rob—I've just swallowed hypocrite.

Ladies! This Beats Cosmetics

GOOD health cannot be camouflaged by powder and rouge. The eyes will tell. That sparkle and clearness that denote good health will not be there if you are constipated. Mrs. Clara Proctor of Pottersville, Mich., had been told by doctors she had this and that disease, and one advised an operation. But she knew she had been constipated all her life so first tried Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. She avoided the operation and now feels better than she ever did. Likewise Mrs. William Appleton of Edgington, Pa., who was badly constipated and now looks her best again after using Syrup Pepsin.

On Sale for 30 Years
Intelligent women are realizing that health and mere outward complexion are two different things, and more and more are taking Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Over 10 million bottles were bought in drug stores last year, the largest selling liquid laxative in the world. Go to your druggist and buy a bottle. The cost is less than a cent a dose. You will see how much more effective a spoonful of Syrup Pepsin is than tablets, powders or pills, and without shock to the system.

Safe Family Laxative
Use it regularly a day before and a day after the periods. This gentle emptying of the bowels will give you relief, and lesser headaches and congestion. Take a spoonful at bedtime, and you will know how much better you feel in the morning. It is a vegetable compound of Egyptian senna and pepsin with agreeable aromatics, and entirely safe not only for you but for the youngest child. Keep a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin constantly in the house for you or some other member of the family may need it any moment to relieve constipation, to break up fevers and colds, to clear up biliousness, indigestion, a pleurisy, a fever sore and other disturbances that show constipation.

Send for Free Trial
If you want to try it free before buying, send for a free trial bottle. Address: Dr. Caldwell, P.O. Box 100, Connelville, Pa.

Not more than one free trial bottle to a family.

INITIAL SUPER POWER PROJECT WOULD SAVE $500,000,000 A YEAR

As a conference recently held in New York City between Secretary Hoover and representatives of the public service commissions of 11 states called to devise plans for putting into effect a comprehensive "super-power" system in the New England and Middle Atlantic States, the secretary told the conference that an annual saving of $500,000,000 and 20,000,000 tons of coal could be saved by use of electricity in those states on an investment of $1,250,000,000 by the establishment of such a system.

By developing readily accessible water power and by providing a high-power transmission system regardless of state lines, Mr. Hoover declared, more power could be developed more cheaply and with a more even, dependable flow.

To carry out such a program the cooperation of the states is needed through action by their legislatures. Mr. Hoover assured the conference that it was a preliminary conference, called with the approval of President Coolidge, to discuss how the state and federal authorities might cooperate in carrying out the plans. Mr. Hoover made it clear that the plan was designed to bring about the coordination and expansion of private facilities.

This would effect a saving of $54,000,000 a year to the railroads, he said, or a return of 14 per cent on the money invested for electrification.

In addition to the estimated railroad saving of $54,000,000, Mr. Murray estimated that the public utility companies selling electric current would save $234,000,000 a year, and that the saving to the 90,000 manufacturers in the district in power costs would be $190,000,000, or a total estimated saving of $568,000,000.

This saving could be effected, Mr. Murray said, for an investment of $1,250,000,000.

JOSEPH GREER and His DAUGHTER by HENRY KITCHELL WEBSTER.

COPYRIGHT by The
BOBBY-MERRILL CO.

This final slant of the talk recalled her resolution regarding the boy, so while she and Joe stood in the corridor waiting for the car to come up, she told him she thought he ought to find something better for young furries to do. "It's too good to be wasted driving actresses home from parties and that sort of thing."

"A little soft on him, are you?" Joe asked.

"Oh, I suppose so," she admitted. "I probably wouldn't have thought of it if he hadn't been so good-looking. But it's true, all the same."

Joe contradicted her, amiably but firmly. "If he's too good for it," he went on to explain, "then it's just the job for him. He has good pay and short hours; the whole day to himself except what he needs to make up lost sleep. In, if he wants to study or do anything else that's worth while, he has all the chance in the world. If I could have picked up a job like that at his age, I'd have blessed my luck. Of course, it's true that, if he isn't any good, he has a handsome chance to go to the devil. But that's no concern of mine."

And then, the elevator coming up, Joe put her in it and bade her good-night.

CHAPTER III

Around this time, within a week of his dinner with Jennie MacArthur, Joe got into a quarrel—ones serious, except as all business quarrels are serious—with Gregory Corbett.

Gregory had undertaken, for Corbett & Co., the building of the machinery for Joe and his engineers had made many changes. Joe had been out of town and when he returned in May he was stumped around and finally threatened in a letter to Corbett, to build a shop and do the work himself.

His object in all this—for Joe even in his tantrums usually had one—was merely to raise the temperature to the boiling-point. His real indignation, unadmitted, was that the Riverside people had been fiddling with the job in a perfunctory way. He wanted to get everybody mad enough so that things would begin to hum and the last time could be made up. And it was really a rough job by now, for it had got well into May, and the harvest that was not necessary to be ready for it was many weeks away.

He was therefore seriously disconcerted to receive, in the course of a few days, a coldy polite letter from Gregory stating that Corbett & Co. would be very glad to relinquish the contract. All work upon it had, by Gregory's orders, been stopped. Joe's drawings were baled up and ready for delivery to any messenger he might send, and he was welcome to execute them where and how he pleased.

One's own words don't make a pleasant diet for anybody, but for Joe to crawl down and apologize was almost impossible. So he appealed to John Williamson as a peacemaker. Williamson had been a bailing and for the first fifteen minutes Joe could do nothing but listen to the banker's summary of his placatorial triumphs.

Well—and what was the row with Gregory all about, anyway?

Joe couldn't complain of his manner of dealing with the business, once he had brought his mind around to it. It was likely he'd already heard Corbett's version of the affair, and had come to his own conclusion—probably that Joe had made a d—d fool of himself.

"I take it, then, you never had any idea of taking the job away from Corbett & Co., and never meant Greg to think you had. And that all you want now is to have them go ahead the way they started."

Joe agreed. That was about it. "Oh, Corbett's all right," the banker said. "I'll see him today—and I'll straighten things out."

The banker had stayed in his chair, and now, for a minute before he answered, he drummed thoughtfully with his fingers upon the desk. "Look here, Greer," he said at last. "You know Gregory Corbett a long time—ways, you may say. I know his grandfather. I think you've got the idea that he's a pompous ass. At least that he's not that way about this. Well, he isn't. You've got him wrong. He's a d—d able fellow. I was just thinking. Have you ever done any trap-shooting? Clay pigeons, you know. He and I shoot a few frames almost every Sunday morning. We both get up early, and he comes over and has breakfast with me, and then we go out to the traps and see what sort of an eye we've got. But a quarter of a bird on it just to make it amusing. Why don't you drive up next Sunday at 10:30?"

It was tough and go for a matter of seconds, whether Joe would tell him to go to hell and take his clay pigeons with him. Was it worth any real man's while trying to work in harness with a fellow, trifling like that? With the pretended sports, itching stuffed fish, shouting clay birds! Pretending to go to keep him amused! To entice him to a bird-to-millions. And him to be coaxed into a good temper before he'd attend to what was their own business!

It was Joe decided afterwards, a matter of pure chance that tipped the beam. He had, instinctively, turned away from the banker in that next moment of exasperation, and what came under his eye was a framed drawing hanging alone on the wall, a portrait by Hellen of a young girl. Joe didn't really look at it until the financier, glancing round to learn why he didn't answer, saw where his gaze was fixed.

"That's my daughter," he said. "They tell me it isn't as good, artistically, as another he did of her, but it looks like her, all right. It did, anyhow, two years ago when it was done."

It was beautiful, Joe thought, and he said so, his mood and intent changing with the suddenness of an alternating current as he spoke. When Beatrice came (he felt sure she would come, although he'd heard nothing as yet, either from her or from the lawyer), he'd have a man as good as that do a picture of her. And this girl on the wall was the one he'd picked out to be his girl's friend. A charming young thing she was, too, though a bit disconcerting, somehow. And he, with that d—d temper of his, had been on the point of wrecking the whole plan, just when Williamson was making his first really friendly advances. (For it hadn't escaped Joe's attention that the banker had never, up to now, asked him to his house. They'd dined together two or three times at clubs and restaurants.) After all, he'd gone into the china-shop of his own free will, hadn't he? Then why should he act like a bull?

He walked over to Williamson, holding out his hand. "You're right all the way through," he said. "I'll try to slow down and take it a bit easier. And I'll be glad to come up Sunday morning."

The direct business result of the Sunday morning trap-shooting was negligible. It was forgotten, indeed, by an action of Jennie MacArthur's. As soon as Williamson telephoned that Corbett & Co. would go ahead with the execution of the order, she wrote Gregory an adroit letter which she persuaded Joe to sign. It had the look of a corrected compromise, since it pointed out that the need for the more complicated machinery, for the processing of the flax after it had been retted, was much less urgent than for the unloading, crushing and conveying machinery, which if they were to avoid heavy losses must be ready when the flax was. It was written in a perfect imitation of Joe's best vein, efficient, vigorous, shot with a dash of good-humored extravagance.

"You're a wonder, Jennie," Joe said as he read it. "I swear I'll never do it again." Write a letter behind her back, he meant. He had made that promise before, as her smile reminded him. "I mean it this time," he asserted, as he signed the letter.

It brought an immediate response from Corbett, a little stiff in its phrasing, for he had no such executive officer as Jennie at his right hand—but satisfactory in purport. The receiving machinery, at least, would be ready as soon as the flax was.

Consequently, when the two men met in John Williamson's gun-room, a mere word or two in addition to a mutually amiable greeting was all the business needed. Further than that they were never likely to go.

Piles

Can't be Cured From the Outside. External treatments seldom cure piles.

No surgical operations. The cause is inside—and circulatory.

The blood is stagnant, the veins clogged.

The blood walls are weak, the pressure too great.

To quickly and safely rid yourself of piles you must first cure the circulation and a fresh current through the stagnant veins.

Internal treatment is the safe method.

Dr. J. C. Leachard, M. D., set at work many years ago to find a real internal remedy. He succeeded. He named his prescription Hem-Rid, and tried it in his own case before he was satisfied.

Now Hem-Rid is sold by druggists everywhere under guarantee. It's easy to take, and can always be found at Connellsville Drug Co., who will gladly refund the purchase price to any dissatisfied customer—Advertisement.
